"Oh, Peter, no wonder you were crying," said Wendy.

"I wasn't crying about mothers," said Peter, sounding annoyed. "I was crying because I can't get my shadow to stick to me," Peter continued. "Besides, I wasn't crying."

Wendy saw the shadow on the floor. It was all crumpled up and not touching Peter at all. She felt very sorry for Peter. "I shall sew it on for you," said Wendy. "But it might hurt a little. Wait... There, it's done."

"See how great I am!"

"Now tell me: Why did you come to our house?"

"I wanted to hear the stories your parents tell you," said Peter. "But now I must return to Neverland to the Lost Boys."

"The Lost Boys?" asked Wendy. "Are there no girls?"

"No," said Peter. "But we would like a girl to join us. Will you be our mother and tell us stories?" Peter jumped on the window sill and said, "Let's fly away!"

"_____ I can't fly!"

"I will teach you," said Peter.
